Mantosh Malhotra
Regional Head, Southeast Asia
Qualcomm Technologies, Incorporated

Mantosh Malhotra is the regional head for Qualcomm in Southeast Asia and Pacific. Malhotra is responsible for managing and maintaining Qualcomm's relationship with the mobile ecosystem and oversees the execution of Qualcomm's business strategies across the region. He joined Qualcomm in 2004 and was previously regional head for Philippines, Malaysia and Singapore, during which he worked with leading operators on 2G to 3G migration among these markets.

With a mobile telecommunications career spanning nearly 15 years throughout the Asia Pacific region, Malhotra brings a wealth of experience in engineering and business development. His most recent role prior to Qualcomm was with Agilent Technologies, where he was responsible for developing its wireless business across the South Asia Pacific.

Malhotra holds a Bachelors' degree in Electronics Engineering from Bangalore University; a Masters in Telecommunications Engineering at RMIT University and a Masters in Business Administration at Melbourne Business School in Australia.
